SECTION A – 20% MARKS
COMPREHENSION AND SUMMARY

1. Read the following passage carefully and then answer the questions that follow it.

Many diseases are found in all parts of the world, but some are more common in particular areas. In East Africa, two common diseases are Malaria and diarrhoea.

Malaria is a disease spread by mosquito bite when you get malaria, you are likely to feel very sick. The symptoms of malaria include high fever, and headache. The high fever can make you feel very hot or very cold. Often you vomit when you have malaria.

One way of protecting your self from malaria is to destroy places where mosquito's breed. Another way is to sleep under a mosquito net if you are staying or living in an area that has many mosquitoes.

Diarrhoea is another common disease in East Africa. It is spread by dirty food or water. When you have diarrhoea, you pass very loose stools, You have a high fever and can have severe stomach ache, vomiting also often accompanies diarrhoea.

To protect your self against diarrhoea, you should observe hygiene. This includes forming a habit of washing your hands after visiting the toilets and before eating. You should cover food so that flies do not land on it. Again you should ensure that the water you drink is boiled or has been purified in some way.
